DRC-NH Staff: So, one in five Americans, including nineteen percent of likely voters, are people with disabilities. Can you talk a little bit about how you would make your campaign accessible to people with disabilities, and if you're elected how you'll make sure that people with disabilities are employed in your administration?

Tulsi Gabbard: Thank you very much. You know one of the things that that we we've started to do in our campaign is to try as hard as possible to make sure that the videos that we are putting out are videos with subtitles takes us a little bit more time to make sure that that happens but understand how important it is to make sure that everyone is able to to get the message that we are sending out.

At different campaign events we get RSVPs from people who say that they need a signer or need help then we make sure that we've got someone there who can provide that service. I think it's important as we look to our offices and and my administration if elected president to make sure that we are upholding the rights of every American and welcoming those who may have different disab... who may have different abilities and providing them and benefiting from their offer to serve this country.

DRC-NH Staff: Thank you.
